Teams are always trying to manage their salary cap, and with tighter enforcement of playoff rosters and rising limits, it's important to find good players who perform well with regard to their salary. Are there forwards that outperform their salary? Are there defensemen who block the most shots per $1M? Are there goalies that outperform expected goals against? Are there players who are actually underrated based on traditional statistics? Looking at player value, we can answer all of these questions and more to help inform teams which players will help their team win at a lower cost.
